Occupational Therapy Practice Framework: Domain and Process Aota,2014 As occupational therapy celebrates its centennial in 2017, attention returns to the profession's founding belief in the value of therapeutic occupations as a way to remediate illness and maintain health. The founders emphasized the importance of establishing a therapeutic relationship with each client and designing an intervention plan based on the knowledge about a client's context and environment, values, goals, and needs. Using today's lexicon, the profession's founders proposed a vision for the profession that was occupation based, client centered, and evidence based--the vision articulated in the third edition of the Occupational Therapy Practice Framework: Domain and Process. The Framework is a must-have official document from the American Occupational Therapy Association. Intended for occupational therapy practitioners and students, other health care professionals, educators, researchers, payers, and consumers, the Framework summarizes the interrelated constructs that describe occupational therapy practice. In addition to the creation of a new preface to set the tone for the work, this new edition includes the following highlights: a redefinition of the overarching statement describing occupational therapy's domain; a new definition of clients that includes persons, groups, and populations; further delineation of the profession's relationship to organizations; inclusion of activity demands as part of the process; and even more up-to-date analysis and guidance for today's occupational therapy practitioners. Achieving health, well-being, and participation in life through engagement in occupation is the overarching statement that describes the domain and process of occupational therapy in the fullest sense. The Framework can provide the structure and guidance that practitioners can use to meet this important goal.

New, Old and Forgotten Remedies E. P. Anshutz, 2002-08 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1917 Excerpt: ...Respiratory Organs: Towards the last of the proving two of the men developed acute symptoms like those of influenza. There was first a feeling of aching all over; and then a thick mucous discharge from the nose occurred, with a feeling of chilliness accompanied with sneezing. These men had no temperature, and the symptoms were evidently the result of taking the indol. They described their sensations at times as a broken-up, grippy feeling. Extremities: One of the patients felt very tired and sore in the lower limbs. The feet burned all day long, and the condition became so aggravated that relief was sought by removing the shoe. The burning of the feet persisted for at least ten days of the proving, and the right foot became quite swollen and painful. The knee joints became so sore and tired that simply standing on the feet aggravated that condition. Another prover reported that his legs were sore, especially at the knees. There was pain at the calf, and also in the ball of the great toe of the right foot. The Skin: In one case, the skin on the left leg became dry and rough, and peeled off; in areas on the right foot below the ankle, it cracked and became sore. One prover, before commencing with the drug, reported an eruption on his body, which became very much irritated and itchy after taking violent exercise or from heat. He reports this eruption to be slowly, but surely disappearing, and his general health wonderfully improved. I will now supplement this proving with several clinical cases, showing the successful use of indol. Failures are not reported, because I wish to exploit the clinical place for indican. I believe that there is a great deal more to be developed from this substance, and I will ask the profession to put it to the test and ...
